Meet for Irish Home Rule

The citizens of the South Side met at St. Anne's hall at 3 p. m. yesterday for the purpose of getting up a demonstration in favor of Irish liberty and the self determination of the Irish people. They decided on Sunday, Dec. 22, at 3 p. m., at St. Anne's Auditorium, 55th and Wentworth Ave. The meeting was addressed by Sergeant Prendergast, H. P. Kenny, John Wolfe and others, and the various committees appointed. Sergeant Prendergast was appointed chairman of the finance committee, and judging by his success in collecting over $50,000 for war activities since the war commenced, the meeting made no mistake. Everybody in Auburn Park loves Sergeant Prendergast for the gallant fight he has put up for our country, and he extends a cordial invitation through this paper to his patriotic American friends to attend a mass demonstration at St. Anne's hall on the above date, in favor of Irish liberty.

"The Woman Who Gave"

An intense and powerful photoplay of a woman's struggles to keep her life clean for the sake of her son. She was a model in the Bohemian studios of Paris, but she hated her own beauty, for she traded it for a title without LOVE. She endured his brutality, but she would not be shamed in the eyes of her son.

Nazimova

The woman of a thousand moods in her greatest achievement—

"Eye for Eye"

A story more wonderful than any of the Arabian Nights. Daring in its intensity, boundless in its beauty. Depicting the passions of the East and the chivalry of the West. Presentine an actress who charms and sways the universe. A superb actress in a superb play. A passionate love story of a girl of the desert. Greater than Carmen—more glowing than Salome. A golden romance of Araby. Like a draught of distilled poppies, it sets the imagination aflame. A story of intrigue, love and valor. A play which no words can do justice to—an actress who attains the unattainable. As mysterious as the desert from which it came. A wonderful display of romance and adventure. A free spirit of the desert caged by civilization. Sparkling as the Mediterranean, colorful as the Orient. The story of a girl who welcomes life with open arms. A play to cause the heart to throb and the pulses to leap. A play so gripping, so intense that the beholder is transported with wonder.

SAVAGE OR SAINT?

That is the question that will come to your mind when you see the greatest actress on stage or screen.

"The Squaw Man"

Adapted from Edwin Milton Royle's famous stage play of the same name, this picture in its new dress is a winner, hands down. You probably know the story of the young Englishman who assumes the guilt for his brother's crime, and goes to America to forget home and fortune and everything else worth while, and there becomes that most despised of men—a squaw man—or one who takes an Indian girl for a wife. But the little son that is born to this ill-mated couple proves the tie that binds, until—the girl back home turns up. The outcome is most dramatic and tragic.

Pauline Frederick

IN

"A Daughter of the Old South"

Pauline Frederick has a role quite different from any of her former ones in this portrayal of a beautiful Creole girl, who finds love in a unique manner, and who nearly falls a victim to a tragedy. You see, Dolores was headstrong, and when her grandmother wanted to choose a husband for her, Dolores asserted her woman's privilege to choose for herself, and almost got herself into a peck of trouble for her pains. Because, after all, the very man whom Granny had picked out for the romantic Creole lassie to marry was the rough diamond with whom Dolores fell in love with herself—so that Granny wasn't so very far wrong after all.

"Too Many Millions"

It ain't possible. No sir-ee-bob! It ain't at all possible that there is such a thing as having too many millions. And yet that is just the way Walsingham Van Dorn felt when the sudden death of his two wealthy uncles left him a fortune of forty million large, round, fat shining simoleons. The picture is an adaptation of the successful novel, "Someone and Somebody," by Porter Emerson Browne, and you will enjoy watching Wallace Reid spend that fortune quite as much as "Wally" enjoys spending it. Ora Carewe is the girl in the case and Tully Marshall is the absconding cashier. It's quite interesting.

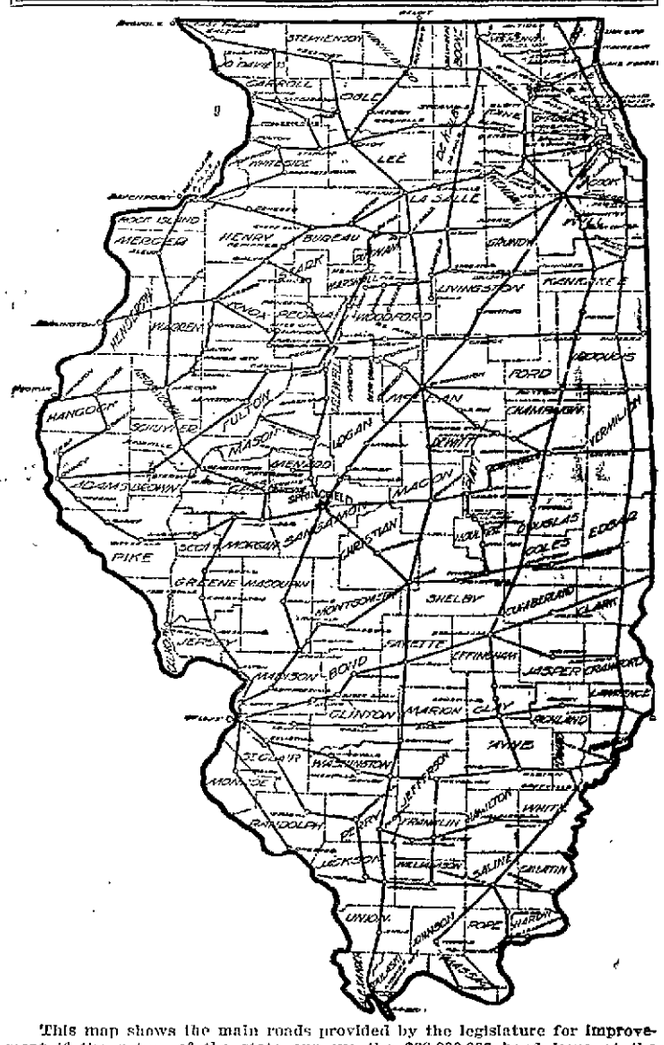
How Illinois Will Look When Great State Road System Is Built



This map shows the main roads provided by the legislature for improvement if the voters of the state approve the $60,000,000 bond issue at the election on Nov. 5. There are 4,800 miles of highway in the system, connecting all the main communities of the state. The money for the bonds and the interest is to come entirely from the state automobile license fees, not a cent from the taxpayer who does not own an automobile. The question will appear on the little ballot and will require a majority of all votes cast at the election for members of the state legislature. Governor Lowden says it would be a calamity if the voters should fail to approve the bond issue.

PEACE WILL NOT MAKE MORE FOOD

"Peace will not bring more food into the world." If the war were to come to an end at once, and if a general treaty of peace were to be signed immediately—and these are two impossible "ifs"—no more food would thereby be created. When peace finally does come, it will merely make it easier to distribute the world's supplies of foodstuffs.

But there can be no increase in our stocks of food until after the next harvest—that is, until some time in 1919 at the earliest.

Today there are millions of persons, old and young, in Europe who are starving or on the verge of starvation. These millions must be fed, regardless of whether the war goes on or not. The chief burden of feeding the hungry falls on America. And the term "America" is not impersonal—it means you and me.

Last year America shipped an enormous quantity of foodstuffs to Europe, more than ever before, but vast as this quantity was, we pledged to increase it by half this year, and it is vitally necessary that we make our promise good. Many millions of lives depend on it. Therefore each one of us in this land of plenty must save food.

Milk for children should not be cut down; vegetables, fruit and fresh water fish cannot well be exported, but the strictest pains should be taken to curtail other food products. Meat, sugar and flour must be conserved.

EAT LESS; WASTE NOTHING.

RED CROSS RELIEF IN THE FAR EAST

Bring Food and Supplies to Czecho-Slovaks in Siberia.

THE American Red Cross has become very active in that part of Russia surrounding Vladivostok, and the prompt medical assistance rendered that distressed country has resulted in saving thousands of lives. The rescue work done by the Red Cross for the Czecho-Slovak refugees has assumed prodigious proportions and is daily becoming greater in scope.

Cabled advices received from Vladivostok report that more than 20,000 Czecho-Slovak refugees, 4,000 of them children, are now being cared for by the American Red Cross at that city. In addition to this relief work, the cables state that the Red Cross Medical organization is attending hundreds of wounded Czecho-Slovak soldiers who have reached Vladivostok after weeks of the most desperate fighting against the pro-German forces.

The condition of the refugees, who were found living in tents and freight cars along the Chinese Eastern Railway west of Harbin, was pitiable. A majority of them are farmers, though there are many coal miners and railway employees in the number, people who were driven from their homes by the Bolsheviki, and some German and Austrian war prisoners.

The work of administering to the wounded Czecho-Slovak fighters, who steadfastly refused to recognize the Bolsheviki-German peace, and relieving the distress of the homeless civilians was started the moment their plight was brought to the attention of the American Red Cross. The relief work was directed by Charles K. Moser, American consul and head of the Red Cross chapter at Harbin. American Red Cross chapters at Tokyo and Shanghai also gave valuable aid. While waiting for instructions from America, they went ahead and raised funds in Vladivostok which provided temporary relief for both soldiers and civilians.

On authorization of the American Red Cross, Dr. R. B. Teusler, head of Entrance to American Red Cross Hospital at Kiev.

St. Luke's Hospital at Tokyo, hurried to Vladivostok with necessary hospital supplies and perfected a medical organization to care for the incoming wounded soldiers.

This organization, which was complete from a medical and sanitary standpoint, consisted of a base hospital with a bed capacity for 200, one rolling canteen, two sanitary trains, one field first-aid unit and a disinfecting train.

Dr. Teusler cabled that there were in active service with his unit fourteen American and seven Japanese doctors and fifteen American and seventeen Japanese nurses. All the American doctors are volunteering their services. Dr. Teusler said he hoped to enlist thirty additional American doctors and fifty American nurses in the Orient.

21,123 W. S. S. Societies in Illinois.

According to the latest reports from Washington there are now 21,123 War Savings societies in Illinois. This means that the state has gone over the top in this respect. The quota was 20,919. The state also has 7,500 maximum war savers, which is considably above the quota.

Banishing Troubles.

Quick is the succession of human events; the cares of today are seldom the cares of tomorrow; and when we lie down at night, we may safely say to most of our troubles: "Ye have done your worst, and we shall meet no more."—Cowper.

Courage and Cowardice.

The thin line between courage and cowardice is none too distinctly drawn, for it rides astride fear. And it must seem inane to be told how one can be either a coward or a courageous man, depending altogether upon which side of the line one takes the first step, but the formula has held good in actual practice in our very best war. —From "Am I a Coward?" by Eugene L. Harrison, in Physical Culture.

Record for Divers.

In salvaging the United States submarine F-4, which was sunk off Honolulu in March, 1915, divers went down to a depth of about 300 feet and adjusted chains and cables and directed operations of men at the surface. This is said to have broken all diving records.

Preserving Frescoes.

A novel method of preserving frescoes, recently discovered by a Japanese, consists in coating them with thin glass, which is made to adhere through the agency of specially prepared chemicals. The new method is said to make the frescoes proof against the injurious action of the atmosphere.

Famous Blarney Castle.

The ruins of old Blarney castle are a few miles outside of Cork, surrounded by pleasant Irish fields and gorgeous hawthorne hedges. The huge square tower stands as firm and true now as in the days when old Cormac McCarthy ruled over the land of Munster. The old chieftain built his castle to withstand English guns and English diplomacy and Blarney castle has kept the trust.

SALVAGE TO HELP WAR SAVINGS DRIVE

WASTE AND EXTRAVAGANCE DECLARED TWO OF COUNTRY'S MOST POWERFUL ENEMIES.

"JUNK" NOW IS VALUABLE

Putting of Material Where It Can Be Used Again a Patriotic and Profitable Service.

To help put Illinois over the top—over-buying its quota of $125,000,000 in War Savings stamps—the Illinois Committee for War Savings, of which Martin A. Ryerson is director, suggests that every person in the state enlist in the salvage service. But this is merely incidental to the "Over the Top" drive, in which it is estimated $10,000,000 worth of stamps must be sold.

Two of the country's most powerful enemies are waste and extravagance because they take force from the building power that the United States must put forth. Therefore it is urged that the putting of material where it can be used again is distinctly patriotic. At the same time the individual in the salvage service profits thereby. Waste material sold to keep it in active service helps the government in its reconstruction work. If the proceeds are invested in War Savings stamps that is another help for the government on which the individual draws interest.

"Let us prove to the government," says the committee, "that for every man who fought overseas there are ten at home willing to make any sacrifice required to help pay the war bills. If you cannot give your waste material for the good of your country, sell it.

"Old rubbers, rubber bags, tubing, automobile tires, old shoes, gloves, scraps of leather, woolen and cotton rags, carpets and clothing in any condition can be used to good advantage. Newspapers, wrapping paper, all scrap paper and string and cord of all kinds should be saved and sold instead of being consigned to bonfires. Old gold and silver are bought by the federal assay office for remelting, while tinfoil, brass and metal junk, old linen, old architectural linen drawings and tobacco coupons are acceptable to the Red Cross.

"In response to an appeal by the National War Savings Committee Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Ex-President and Mrs. Taft and Ex-President Roosevelt donated gold and silver articles to the Treasure and Trinket fund and recent drives in Chicago have filled various melting pots to overflowing.

"Go through your home room by room and see what you can give or sell for the good of the nation. See what old things you can use again to avoid unnecessary spending for new ones. See what you can pass on or make over to avoid drawing on the limited reserves of new material.

"What the salvage bureau of the reclamation division of the quartermaster's department at Washington has accomplished with waste material is pretty well known by this time and it should be an incentive for every man, woman and child to help

Mother

Sent from France by Laurence E. Everett, Co. D, 124th Machine Gun Battery, to his mother, Mrs. H. E. Everett, 909 W. 63rd St., Chicago.

Dear mother, when I read each tender phrase,
Each throbbing line of love you write to me,
My heart grows sad, and oft I count the days
Until at last I shall sail o'er the sea
Back, back to you and home, and all I love.
And once I cursed the fate that placed me here,
But lo! I caught a vision from above
That stayed my heart with patience, mother dear.
Before my thoughts were dark with fancied wrongs,
Of plans miscarried and of work undone;
I heard faint echoes of the old home songs,
And glimpsed your loving faces, one by one;
I knew your troubles that I could not ease—
I suffered at the worry in your heart;
I longed to rest my head upon your knees
And feel my bitter loneliness depart.
To me the war had brought out bitterness—
Brought discipline that cut me to the raw—
And acts unjust that promised no redress,
Beneath the changeless military law.
All through the days I heard the homing-call;
I saw your pleading eyes and heard your voice;
I prayed to come, I prayed to cheer you all,
And in reunion let our hearts rejoice.
All useless seemed the changeless game we played
Of endless labor, unremitting drill.
It seemed 'twould be far better had I stayed
At home with you, who love and need me still.

And then I caught a vision from the skies
Of why we fight and suffer and are sad;
I saw the reason for our sacrifice,
And seeing, lo! my heart grew strong and glad
That I was in the ranks to fight and die,
If need be, for the millions yet unborn,
I saw the Belgian women as they lie,
The spoils of Hunnish lust, undone and torn!
Their children lifting mutilated arms,
And babies caught upon the bayonet;
Their aged mothers, slaving on the farms,
To feed the German hordes unconquered yet;
I saw the helpless sinking in the waves
While German sailors laughed to see them die;
I saw a row of new-made baby graves
And distant aircraft slinking in the sky;
I saw the towns of desolated France,
The fruiting trees destroyed by senseless hate!
Oh, mother, these I saw as in a trance,
And others that my lips dare not relate!
Oh, think if we had lived in Belgium then—
If France had been our home—Oh, God on High!
To picture you the toy of brutish men,
Our home destroyed, my loved ones left to die!
I see, I see at last the reason why
We must forget the little things of life,
And dry our tears and stifle every cry,
Whatever pain may issue from the strife;
Why we must battle on, with ne'er a thought
But Victory, nor stop to count the cost,
Until a sweeter Liberty is wrought
From out the old, which was so nearly lost!

My mother, cheer your heart and dry your tears,
For after while, God willing, I'll return.
We sacrifice today that, through the years
We may enjoy the peace for which we yearn.
Forget all cares, forget all minor things;
Today we labor and tomorrow rest.
We fight for every mother as she sings
Her babe to sleep upon her throbbing breast;
We battle for the Womanhood of earth,
For liberty, for honor and for Right,
Be proud, oh mother dear, that you gave birth
To one who lived to enter such a fight.

America's First Library.

The first library in America was opened at Harvard college 280 years ago. For more than sixty years the Harvard collection of books was the only one of importance on the continent, but in 1700 a public library was founded, and in 1731 Benjamin Franklin started a subscription library at Philadelphia, the first of its kind in America. The library of the United States, now called the library of congress, was established in 1800. The first public library recorded in history was founded at Athens in the year 540 B. C.

Great Mystery Solved.

Doctor Hirschberg says one of the most common causes of stammering is the temporary interruption of speech. You know it is one of the compensations of human existence to have the mystery of a lifetime solved in a jiffy. We ascertained some time back that hunger is frequently caused by a prolonged interruption of the movement of victuals to the stomach.—Houston Post.

Cleaning Leather.

Leather-covered furniture may be washed with castile soap and lukewarm water. The oil in the soap preserves the leather and helps to keep it soft. Gray leather shoes may also be cleaned in this way.

Bully for Bill.

There was a city lady visiting some relatives in the country and as she was walking down the lane she saw some calves. Thinking to display her knowledge, she remarked: "Oh what pretty little cowlets." Bill, the farm boy, came up about that time, heard her remarks, and said: "Excuse me, miss, but them's bullets."—Boys' Life.

Greatness.

No one ever went seeking after greatness and found it; it is essentially a by-product. Fame of a certain sort may be acquired by direct effort, wealth can be won by those who place its possession first, and notoriety is not hard to compass; but real greatness comes to those who are not busy seeking it.

Recognized the Symptoms.

Little May had been sick and had her temperature taken with the thermometer several times. Shortly after, when out walking with her mother, she saw a man testing his tires with a little pressure gauge. Turning to her mother, she exclaimed: "Oh, look, mother; that poor tire must be sick, because the man's taking its temperature."
